With many highlighting the importance of bringing affordable housing units to Somerville and remaining committed to furthering the work the city does to establish itself as Sanctuary and Welcoming City. Several residents expressed hope in the development this would bring to Gilman Square and urged a Community Benefits Agreement be in place before the Council votes. 5 individuals spoke in direct opposition of the development bringing to light the negative effects the shadows will have on the neighbors currently living there. The excessive number of 50 units was also of concern, with individuals pointing out there are numerous infrastructure, health, and environmental concerns including pollution and traffic and parking that will follow the construction of the 50 units. A few individuals spoke up urging future construction to focus on quality materials and building in a way that is climate friendly.

54 individuals, a mix of in-person and online support, spoke and provided their opinions, recommendations, and further questions regarding the four proposed amendments. Amongst those present in the Chamber 26 were youths from Dojo ready to listen, and some to speak, on the lasting opportunities a community center could provide for them and the resources that Rafi has already worked to protect and promote. Overwhelming, 28 individuals, some in full support and some in opposition, all agreed that a Community Benefits Agreement with Union Square Neighborhood Council and a Project Labor Agreement should be approved prior to the Council voting on the amendments. Amongst those present to speak in support of these amendments the need to allow for tech space, research and development to promote climate advocacy, the creation of a community center, and the ability to support arts were present in almost all who spoke. There were numerous hesitations to the proposed amendments including, but not limited to, the effect development would have on traffic, the rental market, height of the building, shade, pollution, noise, cut through access, how neighbors will access their homes, and the concern for where the Arts who currently exist in the space will end up. Specifically for artists and creatives who many not be able to afford the price post development and the continued loss of arts space.
