Hey there,

On the corner of Cedar St and Albion, just past the fire hydrant, is a patch of dirt. There used to be a small tree there, but it was hit this summer by a teenage driver, so now it's just a patch of dirt.

I was curious if the City of Somerville would allow a Little Free Library to be build on the patch of dirt. There was already a root structure there, so digging for a post shouldn't be an issue, and unlike roots the post will never significantly grow and become a risk to the water mains. There are a number of Little Free Libraries around Somerville already, and they seem to be a nice little positive part of the community experience. I live at [REDACTED] and would happily oversee installation of it if I just have permission to put it there.

Thanks for you time,

- Dan Seaman
