Description: In this developing block, we have new neighbors, neighbors that are moving, and neighbors that have lived in these homes for generations. There has been plenty of development on this block over the last 10 years. Some apartment turnover, some new construction, and some residents that provide intrinsic value to the thread of our small block community. We want to get everyone (new and long-time residents, young and old residents) together to meet each other, learn this blocks history and build connections with each other.
