This photo was taken from my desk 20 minutes earlier, after they got done cleaning up the lot. And even with all that room they still parked on the street.

Good Morning,

Thank you so much for taking the time to hear from the neighbors of Master Used Cars.

This morning I chatted with Barbara Sullivan from commercial parking permits, and Master Used Cars does have parking permits. However, the permits do not allow parking on Prospect Street, only on surrounding smaller streets. In particular, Barbara commented with a wry laugh that she would never issue that type of parking permit for Prospect Street because she knows how busy that street is, that she grew up around here and would never issue that type of permit.

I took this photo of one of their for-sale vehicles last week on Feb 15th, at 4:55pm right in front of our house. I'll also include a description of this still-for-sale truck from the Master Used Car lot web site. This occurred during the limited volume of vehicles sanction when they had more room on their lot. This is not an unusual occurrence.

They treat our crowded and busy street like their little fiefdom, with little bother for their neighbors.

Could you please add this email to their file?

Afternoon,

After last night's heated hearing on Master Used Car's number of vehicles on their lot, which as of now licensed at 23 vehicles, today they have 27, not 23.

In my opinion this shows their continued lack of concern or respect for the rules. This does not reinforce their December 6th statement "we will take care of everything listed to us and make it right in best way possible".

Please let them get the regulations under control before they are able to re-increase their lot size. They did, however, get their supply truck to pull into their lot, and not have them park on the sidewalk, so that's something.

Best,
