

The City of Somerville is offering a new
Lead Service Line Replacement Program
to improve our local water infrastructure.

Some homes in older cities have water service lines made of lead, which connect residences to the water main in the street.

Lead can cause serious health problems, so the City is working to remove all lead pipes from the water system to minimize risk of lead exposure through tap water.

City records show your residence has a water service line made of lead.

We'd like to replace it, free of charge.
