(ID # 23-0127) That this City Council invites Somerville resident David Gibbs to speak about the youth mental health crisis in the city.

President Ewen-Campen sponsored Mr. Gibbs to address the Council. Mr. Gibbs spoke about his son's recent suicide and noted that many young people are struggling with emotional problems, drug abuse, etc. He spoke about some of the contributing factors, including poverty and guns. Mr. Gibbs went on to say that there's a need to provide good jobs, re-imagine mental health services, and use revenue to help the most vulnerable. With $19.6 billion in annual gun sales, the death pandemic due to guns increases each year. He believes that gun control is the best method to prevent suicide and that the 2nd amendment needs to be rewritten. He feels that people should collectively give up guns and work to make them illegal while trying to find creative ways to stop the flow of guns locally. Mr. Gibbs closed his address by saying that America's gun policy is insane and that there's no NARCAN for a bullet.

Katelin Firth and Eric Willisson gave a presentation explaining what participatory budgeting (PB) is, its project criteria, how it works, the purpose of the working group, as well as the group's goals and values. They spoke about spreading the word by reaching out to those not typically engaged, canvassing, using mailers and flyers, in-person events, coordinating with schools, ads, city socials, newsletters, and community meetings. Mr. Willisson spoke about the proposal development phase, proposal scoring and the voting process. The group would like to attain 100 ideas and at least 3000 votes and would like Council members to help spread the word by canvassing the city. Councilor Wilson asked about safeguards that will be implemented and Mr. Willisson addressed those concerns. Council Pineda Neufeld asked about outreach during the fall festival season in the city and Ms. Firth replied that the group will be making efforts to meet people where they are. Councilor Gomez Mouakad noted that the city is coming into election season and said it takes time for people to build trust, so she's not sure about the effectiveness of the canvassing process. She urged the Ms. Firth and Mr. Willisson to work with the PTA's to reach out to residents. Councilor Kelly commented that it's critical that councilors participate. The plan is for this process to kick off in October, although it won't be fully complete. Additional information may be found on the city's website at: www.somervillema.gov/pb.
